Seemingly, the Ukrainians and the Poles are ignorant of the fact that the rest of the world has ceased fighting.

A PERMANENT LABOR BOARD

The National War Labor Board has justified its existence by the manner in which it has lessened the difference between labor and capital. Formed under the pressure of war-time necessity, it has proved so valuable that the Government is contemplating its continuation, though it can not remain in exactly its present form nor with its present members.

The board, as it now stands, is composed of members representing employers, employees and the public. Its purpose has been to mediate controversies affecting production necessary to the conduct of the war. Committees were named in different parts of the country to hear local controversies, and when they failed to effect settlements, the case was referred to the national board.

Many manufacturers over the country still have outstanding contracts with the Government. The board is necessary in dealing with labor troubles that may arise in these cases. There is no reason why a permanent board of this character should not be established so that labor troubles of all kinds might be settled with the least possible friction.

A recent dispatch said the former kaiser was going to return to Berlin. Will the German people allow this after several hundred thousand marks worth of foodstuffs has been found in his castle?

MORE WORK FOR THE RED CROSS

The reports of the work done by the Boone County chapter of the Red Cross made at the recent annual meeting bring home more closely to us the wonderful work done by the whole organization. The meeting also served to bring to the attention of the people of the community the fact that the work of the Red Cross is not finished though the war is won.

One branch of the work stands out clearly as of vast importance and holds great possibilities for future efforts of real worth and magnitude. This branch is the civilian relief section for both foreign and home service.

The foreign relief section has unlimited possibilities for service in helping the inhabitants of the invaded countries to regain their homes, get their lands into condition for cultivation again, and to relieve those who have been made to suffer by the direct contact with four years of war.

The home service work includes looking after the families of soldiers and sailors and looking after the men themselves when they return to civilian life. The return of soldiers to civilian pursuits is one of the big problems of the time. The Red Cross will help them to find employment and, if they have been injured or disabled, will try to find occupations suited to their condition.

Therefore because the war is over is no excuse for losing interest and failing to continue in Red Cross work.

We must not think we are justified in selling our Liberty Bonds just because the war is over. Uncle Sam isn't through financing his fight for freedom, and until he is, every dollar taken out of Government securities hampers him.

With the windows now being filled with all kinds of Christmas attractions is it any wonder that the children loiter home from school and even grown-ups find it necessary to go down oftener than usual?

THE NEW BOOKS

"Background of the World War."

A syllabus of "The Background and Issues of the World War" has been prepared by Prof. N. M. Trenholme of the history department of the University of Missouri "to give students an understanding of what the war is about and of the supreme importance to civilization of the cause for which we are fighting."

"The remote and immediate causes of the war and the underlying conflict of points of view as expressed in the governments, philosophies and literatures of the various states on both sides of the struggle" are dealt with.

Geographical, social and economic settings of the war are given, as is a historical background of the war. Professor Trenholme takes up each country at war and its issues in the war. He explains how America came into the war and the meaning of the war to America. The peace proposals and peace terms of President Wilson and Lloyd George are given also.

The syllabus was originally planned to be used in connection with the "war aims" course in the S. A. T. C. but it is valuable for everyone.

TWO ARMISTICES SIGNED!

(The following statement, carried in full by the Associated Press, has been sent to the Missouriian by the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—"Neither myself nor the United Press has any apology to offer for giving to the American people as news a statement of the signing of the armistice announced as official and furnished in writing for publication by the Vice Admiral of the United States in supreme command of all the American naval forces in France. Were the same identical proposition presented tomorrow, we would act exactly as on Nov. 7. No newspaper man could or would do otherwise."

Roy W. Howard, president of the United Press, made the foregoing statement upon his return to New York today after having spent yesterday in Washington where he conferred with Secretary of the Navy Daniels and other government officials following his return on a Government transport.

"The bulletin which Admiral Wilson gave out and which the United Press carried was not a 'rumor' or a 'report.' It was a bulletin furnished to the Admiral as official, and so given to us," continued Howard.

"It was given to us for publication by the ranking active United States naval officer in France. There was no more ground for doubting Admiral Wilson's source of news than there would have been for doubting the statement had it come from Marshal Foch.

"It was about 10 o'clock in the morning (French time) when I first learned of a rumor that the armistice had been signed. The report was current in both French and American army circles in Brest when I arrived that morning to embark for the United States.

"I put in the entire day endeavoring to confirm the report. But it was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon that Admiral Wilson was notified on what he stated was official authority, and on what I know he had every reason to believe was official authority that the armistice had been signed.

"The announcement had been made by the local Brest newspaper and the civilians, soldiers and sailors had their celebration under full headway before I was able to get from Admiral Wilson personally a copy of his written announcement and his personal assurance that the bulletin was official.

"The Admiral then sent his personal aid with me to assist me in filing the dispatch, as I do not speak French fluently.

"It was the fact that all Brest, including operators and censors accepted the news as official and was celebrating at the time that caused my wire to pass the French censorship at Brest unchallenged.

"Upon my return to the United States, I learned that no news had been published here of the fact that celebrations of the signing of the armistice took place on November 7, at practically all of the army and naval bases on the French coast.

"I was also surprised to learn that nothing had reached here by cable concerning the fact that all Paris had the report of the armistice being signed. At the American Luncheon Club meeting in Paris on that day the toastmaster arose and with Admiral Benson seated on one side of him and America Consul General Thacker on the other, announced on what he said was the authority of the American embassy that the armistice had been signed.

"All the celebration on that day was by no means on this side of the Atlantic.

"Nothing much has yet been said as to the source of Admiral Wilson's information. This is not for me to discuss. Nothing has been said as to the reason for the report current on that day throughout France. No explanation has yet been offered of how the report reached the American embassy in Paris as official. Neither has any explanation been offered yet as to what became of the first German armistice delegation, headed by Von Hintze, which was reported to have reached the French lines November 6 and which then disappeared from the news, being supplanted by the Eerzberger plenipotentiaries.

"Some of these matters will be cleared up after peace is signed." Howard called upon Secretary Daniels yesterday to express his appreciation of the courage and squareness of Admiral Wilson in furnishing the United Press with a signed statement assuming full responsibility for the bulletin which started the wonderful American celebration of November 7.
